CELEBRATING 50 YEARS OF PROMOTING LOCAL AGRICULTURE
SONOMA COUNTY FARM TRAILS

ANNIVERSARY

FREE
Fifty years ago, a group of forward-thinking farmers banded together to bring the public out onto Sonoma County’s farms and ranches. They produced a “Map & Guide” that laid down the first Farm Trails along which people could meet their farmers and learn more about the origins of their food. These pioneers also produced the Gravenstein Apple Fair to honor the iconic local apple and celebrate Sonoma County’s rural traditions. This was back in 1973, before the advent of farmers’ markets, CSAs, and campaigns to shop locally. These Farm Trails helped the member farms to sustain their businesses, and while the membership has grown and changed with the passage of time, the guiding vision of our organization has remained the same: to keep farms forever in Sonoma County.

For half a century, Sonoma County Farm Trails has promoted farmers and educated the public about the importance of supporting local agriculture. As a 501(c)6 nonprofit, our mission is to “ensure the continuing economic viability of Sonoma County agriculture by instilling an appreciation of ag as a vital part of our community and lifestyle.” To that end, we publish the annual Map & Guide, including a dynamic online version of this “catalog” of Sonoma County’s rich agricultural community. We organize seasonal farm tours and marketing campaigns, produce the Gravenstein Apple Fair every August, and collaborate with a large network of organizations and individuals who care deeply about family farms and the future of our food system. Through our sister 501(c)3 nonprofit, Farm Trails Foundation, we fund scholarships for aspiring and young farmers, to encourage the next generation of ag.

In this 50th anniversary edition of the Map & Guide, we reflect on our past, celebrate our present, and look forward to another 50 years of supporting local agriculture. We recognize that growing and processing food for any community is truly a labor of love; a spectacularly demanding job with increasingly tight margins. We hope you’ll join us at our signature events and on the trails throughout the year to enjoy the fruits of this bountiful region and support the local heroes who nourish us. Together, we can ensure a future of farms forever!
Sonoma County encompasses a wide variety of landscapes: from oak-studded hills to floodplains; from redwood groves to windswept beaches. Sonoma County Farm Trails members can be found in all of these places, offering agricultural products with their own sense of terroir - flavors and textures unique to their soil and microclimates.

We invite you to browse these pages as you travel around the county, getting to know the farmers and producers who constitute our vibrant agricultural community and the extraordinary land that sustains us all.

HOW TO USE THE MAP & GUIDE

1. Choose a region to explore. Farm Trails members are displayed in a series of 7 regional maps on the following pages. Members are listed with corresponding map location numbers (if they are open to the public). Please check listings to determine hours of operation. Some of our members are only open seasonally or by appointment.

2. Find a Farm Trails member. Turn to pages 4 and 5 for an alphabetized directory of farms, artisan producers, markets, and agriculture-based businesses that comprise our membership. Each listing includes contact information, short descriptions, and general hours of operation.

3. Visit our dynamic website at FarmTrails.org and use it in conjunction with this Map & Guide. The website features a multilevel search function that details all the products, services, methods, techniques, and events of our members. It also hosts Farm Trails resource pages, such as Dining, Lodging, Farmers' Markets, CSAs, U-Pick, and Tastings, as well as our Apple Trail and holidays campaigns.

hat makes Sonoma County so special?

The big bowl of sky overhead, our coastline, undulating hills, and winding country roads, our pinot noir, redwood trees, Gravenstein apples, Dungeness crab, and our Santa Rosa plums. But my favorite answer?

Farm Trails.

Year after year, Farm Trails produces a map of its members, a guide that leads both locals and visitors to our farms and ranches. The beating heart of Sonoma County is agriculture and Farm Trails has been celebrating it for 50 years.

When I moved to Petaluma in July 1972, I already knew the county fairly well. Once I settled in with my two little girls, I headed to Bodega Bay for whole salmon, bought raw milk and butter at a local drive-in dairy, picked blackberries on country lanes, and zipped to Sonoma for cheese, stopping at farm stands along the way for fruits and vegetables. I gathered eggs laid by an independent hen in an enormous eucalyptus stump in my backyard. That Christmas, our living tree was from a nearby farm.

And then came spring, and what a beautiful spring it was, with bright yellow mustard covering every hillside and a new nonprofit organization, an answer to my unspoken prayers. Farm advisor John Smith, along with a group of other advisors, ag advocates, and farmers, banded together to establish Sonoma County Farm Trails. Its inaugural map was published in May 1973. During my first months here, I had been lucky, finding things by chance. Suddenly I was connected viscerally to our ag community.

That first map was transformative, a key to a new nonprofit organization, an answer to my unspoken prayers. Farm Trails Timeline 1973 - 2023

Life after World War II brought a lot of change for America’s farmers. The rise of supermarkets with their long, consolidated supply chains, the growth in popularity of processed foods, and the flood of cheaper imports from overseas all undercut small farms around the country and made it difficult to compete for space in the kitchens of an increasingly urbanized population.

Then, in January 1973, a group of local farmers, farm advisors, and ag advocates met to discuss something called “direct marketing.” The group decided to form a nonprofit organization called Sonoma County Farm Trails that would connect the public directly to local farms, publishing their first issue of the now-famous Map & Guide to help people get their feet on the land and their hands on fresh, locally produced fruit and vegetables. The rest, as they say, is history.

Here are some of the major milestones in the past 50 years of Sonoma County agriculture, including Farm Trails...
